Book now for Discovery Days with the Learning Team for 2011

Birmingham Museum and Art Gallery

Birmingham Museum and Art Gallery is providing a special programme of Discovery Days for 2011. Spanning morning and afternoon, these special events combine taught sessions, artefact handling, art and craft activities.

Discovery Days

These Cross-Curricular activities, carried out in a superb and stimulating environment, teach pupils how to explore the past using a wide range of sources. They allow pupils to develop their enquiry skills and creativity.

Your Discovery Day will be made up of two sessions, a morning and afternoon of approximately 1 hour 30 minutes each. If two classes are brought then they will swap over at lunchtime. One session will be mostly artefact-based and concentrate on historical enquiry. The other will look at works of art and techniques associated with a particular culture as well as including an art-and-craft-based activity.

Places are limited – book now to assure your place. A charge of £6.50 per pupil (£4.75 Birmingham LEA schools) applies for the full-day.

“We really enjoyed the day - thank you”

Discovery Days

Ancient Egypt

Art, History and Drama have been combined to create a day of exploration. Pupils will learn about mummification, handle artefacts, design a sarcophagus and participate in a role-play activity.

Ancient Greece

Using role-play and discussion, children will be introduced to the different ways that the Ancient Greeks portrayed mythical stories from the BMAG collections. Paper cutting techniques will be used to create a theatre mask of their own which can be taken back to school.
